WATCHES

AVAILABLE AT

ODEL CHRISTMAS 2019

Out here in the tropics, we can only dream of magical, wintery Decembers. Snowflakes falling, fireplaces roaring, and chunky knit sweaters all seem like a fantasy when your average daily temperature rarely drops below 22°C, but this year at ODEL, we're obsessed with having a cosy Christmas! You'll be yearning to style yourself as the next big holiday rom-com star when you start looking through our ideas in this issue of the ODEL Magazine! Step aside, Love, Actually – there's a new end-of-year romance to be told! We've not just gone hygge this Christmas, we've gone HUGE. Deep reds, striking plaids, seasonal goodies and LUV SL's tuk-tuk ornaments will be hard to resist in-store, so why fight it?

Write down your wish list as you browse these pages, and then come on down to ODEL to treat yourself for the holidays. Oh, and your loved ones too, of course!

SEASONAL STYLE

Cosy up to the season's warmest trend yet. Whether your plaid of choice is gingham, buffalo or tartan, ODEL has style ideas that will have you thinking out of the box...

YOUR STYLE Check LIST!

From the lumber-sexual (remember them?) to the punk rocker, this boxy pattern has proven through the ages that it truly is hip to be a square.

SEASONAL STYLE

The term 'plaid' encompasses a range of checked prints, from the tartan proudly donned by the Scottish as far back as 8th Century BC, to that pink gingham wedding dress worn by Brigitte Bardot, to today's iconic and chic Burberry pattern worn as both a luxury brand and a street-savvy look.

All tartan patterns are plaid, but not all plaid is tartan! Tartan is the name given to a plaid pattern that originated in Braveheart country. The Scots crafted their tartan using dyes from the natural elements around them, which varied between each region. Each clan's tartan would, therefore, have its own distinct colouring, creating a unique identity.

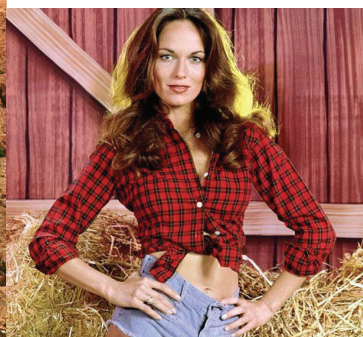

This idea of distinctiveness associated with plaid has permeated through the years, and was fully embraced during the late 70s and early 80s in the United Kingdom when the punk movement was in full swing. This time intended to mock the traditional fashion stylings of the Royals, followers of the punk movement sported in-your-face trousers, bomber jackets, braces and mini skirts as their own fashion statements.

Rewinding briefly back to 1959, we should appreciate the individuality displayed by Brigitte Bardot and her sense of style when she married actor Jacques Charrier. The actress – who would go on to leave an impressive mark on fashion with her bridal looks both on and off screen – wore a prim pink gingham shirtwaist dress. Designed by Jacques Esterel, the dress was intended to represent the (at the time) fairly new idea of appealing to a younger and more vibrant generation.

A similar but larger pattern to gingham is buffalo plaid – a firm favourite stateside amongst lumberjacks and bearded, man-bunned hipsters alike, and an easily recognisable print usually worn in black and red. Its origins lie in Maine, where the designer of the check pattern is said to have owned a herd of buffalo, hence the name. With its Christmassy tones, this pattern (along with tartan) is always a winning holiday choice.

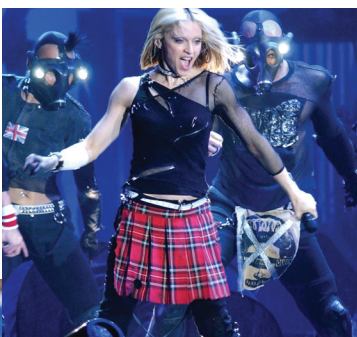

To find out which plaid suits your style file, stop by ODEL this season. Whether you want a hint of it or the full rock 'n roll aesthetic, our seasonal collection is sure to have something that checks all your boxes!

Tartan Rocks on...

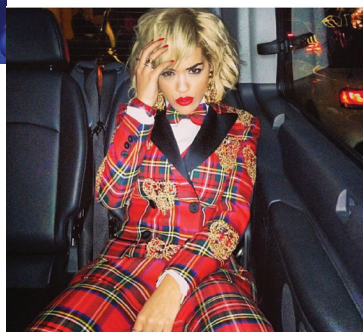

Catherine Bach, the original Daisy Duke, in her signature flannel shirt brought a brand new element of sensuality to the print.

Lady 'Di', and following her footsteps, Kate Middleton, gave the humble plaid the royal treatment. The question is, who wore it best?

The iconic Madonna rocking a 'punk vibe.' She made plaid so popular the Scottish people designed a special tartan in honour of her.

Rita Ora has been a fan of the fabric for many years and she stands out in her on trend red tartan trouser suit. Stewart Royal tartan, in case you wondered.

SEASONAL STYLE

INTO THE Night...

December nights are rife with good times and laughter, so match that bubbly feeling on the inside with sparkly smiles and shimmering style on the outside. And once you're done being out on the town, curl up with that special someone, because nothing beats being alone together.
